Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

IN THIS arson controversy involving home town figures the Star feels that the only justifiable public stand is to insist that the sentence pronounced by a court of law, and affirmed by the Arkansas Supreme Court, be respected and enforced by our elective officials. The same court tried other local men—and their sentences were enforced.

Busche Brothers Shot to Death by Resolute Farmer

Hansford Russell, 40, Posseman, Slays Them in 3-Way Duel

GO DOWN FIGHTING

Arkansas Manhunt Comes to End in Woods Near El Paso

SEARCY, Ark.—Single-handed, a Virginia farmer shot it out with the desperate Busche brothers, Clarence and Freddie, in the woods near El Paso at dusk Monday, killed them both, and ended one of the greatest manhunts in the history of Arkansas. The slayer of the young Missouri killers was Hansford Russell, 40, the same volunteer who halted their reckless flight northward Saturday afternoon at Vienna by firing into their car, forcing them to abandon it and take to the woods.

One at a time the brothers advanced and fired upon him in the woods. He met their fire, escaped unharmful, and felled them both. They died a few minutes after they fell, close together, still clutching the weapons used without provocation—upon their defenseless persons during their mad career of killing in the last few weeks.

Identified by Sheriff
At 10 Monday night Sheriff John W. Harris of Iron county, Missouri, where the brothers began their murderous career with the slaying of a deputy sheriff, arrived in Searcy and inquired the way to the scene of the manhunt in Faulkner county.

"They've been killed," he was told. Fifteen minutes later, the bodies arrived in a truck, and were identified positively as Clarence and Freddie Busche by Sheriff Harris and his deputy, R. A. McKee, who was with Deputy Arthur Casteel when he was slain.

None El Paso
With 10 sheriffs and more than 100 peace officers, aided by bloodhounds, on their trail in a closely guarded area, the fugitives eluded capture for 48 hours.

About 5 p. m. Monday they were seen in the woods about two miles

Shoots at Family, Then Kills Self

NORTH LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Tom Underdunk, about 70, was found shot to death and his 14-year-old stepson, Delphi Toliver, was found wounded in the chest at their home Tuesday.

Officers quoted the youth as saying that Underdunk shot him, fired at his mother and sister, then killed himself. Officers said they found a rifle in Underdunk's hand. The youth told officers his stepfather had been drinking.

Patman Bonus Bill Passed by Senate

Vinson Measure Dropped for Bill F. D. R. Will Veto

Vinson Measure Would Pay Bonus in Full, Borrowing Money With Bond

THE SECURITY BILL

Patman Measure Would Pay Bonus by Issuing New Money

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The senate late Tuesday afternoon passed the Patman bonus bill in the face of a certain presidential veto.

By this action the senate joined the house in voting for cash payment of the soldiers' bonus by issuing 2 billion dollars in new currency.

Only a little earlier in the day the senate had side-tracked the Harrison compromise measure in favor of the Legion-backed Vinson bill—which had indicated little chance for consideration of the more radical Patman measure.

Favored Vinson Bill
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The senate Tuesday substituted the Vinson cash-payment bonus bill for the compromise offered by Senator Harrison, Mississippi Democrat.

The vote was 54 to 30.

The Vinson bill would cash the adjusted compensation certificates but does not specify how the Treasury would raise the money—but this presumably would be done through a bond issue.

The Patman bill, passed by the lower house and frowned on by the senate, would cash out the certificates by simply printing 2 billion dollars in new currency.

The Harrison measure, sidetracked Tuesday for the Legion-backed Vinson bill, would have compromised matters, granting the veterans an additional dating on the certificates back to November 11, 1918, instead of the present dating, January 1, 1925. Under the Harrison plan an unexpired $1,000 certificate could be cashed at $775, or held until 1945, when it would have been worth $1,153.

Rail Pension Decision
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—High administration circles expressed the view Tuesday that the supreme court's invalidation of the railway pension act would not affect the social security legislation, and that railway employees could be provided for under the security legislation.

Senator Wagner, New York Democrat, said the security bill is based on the government's power to tax and to spend money, while the act held invalid was based on the power to regulate interstate commerce.

Pacific Air Subsidy Cut
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The senate approved Tuesday the 900-million-dollar Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill and sent it to the White House.

Approval of the conference report resulted in the striking off of the proposed 2-million-dollar subsidy for Pacific air mail routes.

It left intact the compromise agreement providing for back pay for 1,200 Treasury employees, salaryless since December 1.

Loughborough Represents Them in Test of Sales Tax Law

LITTLE ROCK.—The Arkansas Education association has retained J. F. Loughborough to represent the association in the sales tax case which will be taken under submission by the Arkansas Supreme Court May 27, it was announced Monday.

State Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wisconsin, who appeared from a ruling of Pulaski Chancery Court restraining him from making plans to collect the 2 per cent sales tax which would have gone into effect May 1, filed a brief in the supreme court Monday.

The brief, written by Louis Tarlow and Millard Alford, attorneys for the revenue department, contends that the sales tax is neither an occupation, property, license nor privilege tax, but that it is a form of excise tax, levied under the taxing power of the state which permits the levying of any tax not specifically prohibited by the constitution.

Joe C. Barrett, Jonesboro lawyer, filed a brief as a friend of the court in which he reviewed sales tax and gross income statutes of 22 states.

Shoot First, Ask Questions Later

Sheriff Bearden Urges Drastic Treatment of Chicken Thieves

A solution to the wave of chicken thievery sweeping Hempstead county was offered Tuesday by Sheriff Jim Bearden.

"Shoot them, and then we won't have to wonder who these thieves are," the sheriff was quoted as saying.

"People have the same right to protect their property as they do their families. I suggest to every citizen of the county that when you catch a chicken thief, shoot him."

"I want to warn every individual or firm buying chickens to take the name, address and description of every person who sells them."

"It is against the law to buy stolen property—yet some poultry buyers in the county purchase these chickens knowing them to be stolen."

"Some of these poultry buyers have refused to give officers information that they desired to have in order to run down these thieves."

"Poultry buyers are warned not to purchase stolen chickens as this is against the law—and if the buying of these stolen chickens is not stopped we are going after you as well as the actual chicken thief," the sheriff declared.

12 Foresomes Will Appear After Postponement Because of Rain

A golf tournament postponed at Hope country club course last Sunday because of rain will be played next Sunday, May 12, Coach Foy H. Hammons announced Tuesday.

Additional work is being done this week and the course is expected to be in good shape by Sunday. Any local golfer is eligible to take part.

Coach Hammons expects to have 12 foresomes ready for play at 1 p. m. Awards for each foresome will be made by local merchants.

40 Turn Out for Spring Football

Coach Hammons Optimistic Over Prospects for New Grid Season

Approximately 40 candidates for the 1935 football team reported to Coach Foy H. Hammons Monday afternoon for the first day's spring grid practice.

Training will continue for the next two weeks, climaxed by a game Friday night, May 17, at the high school athletic field.

Many experiments will be made with various combinations to fill vacancies left by seven lettermen. Big Freeman Stone, outstanding tackle of the 1934 squad, is being groomed for a back-field berth.

Other candidates will be tested in several positions. Coach Hammons, although feeling it is too early to predict the outcome for the next season, said Tuesday that he hoped to have a much stronger team in 1935.

Next year's schedule is almost complete and will be announced within the next few days.

Among the men lost are: Captain R. C. Kennedy, all-state end; Guy Payne, tackle; Dennis Richard, guard; Jack Turner, halfback; Lester Hobbs, tackle; Ralph Owens, guard; J. W. Harper, halfback.

Modern Hospital Elevates Quality of Medical Work

Well-Prepared Physicians Seek Hospital-Equipped Community

CITY'S OBLIGATION

Second of Mrs. Miles' Articles on National Hospital Week

In observance of Florence Nightingale week, May 6 through May 11, Mrs. Frank Miles, chairman of Julia Chester hospital board, has prepared a series of three articles dealing with the progress, problems and benefits of hospitals. The second article:

By Mrs. Frank Miles

The community value of the hospital is particularly apparent when we consider that more and more the well-prepared physician who has taken advanced work will seek the community having the facilities of a modern hospital.

If good doctors, well trained nurses, and a high type of medical service are community assets, then is the hospital, a community asset, since it contributes all these? The hospital is no longer a adjunct, but has become the center of medical service of a community.

Since the advantages of a hospital accrue to the entire public, the provision of hospital capital through taxation and voluntary contributions is an equitable procedure.

Community Responsibility

It is not generally recognized that the hospital is distinctly a community responsibility inasmuch as "the public health" to use the words of Gladstone, "is the public wealth."

The conservation of the public health must inevitably be a community responsibility. The community has obligations to the hospital and the hospital has obligations to the community. These obligations imply the interchange of sympathy, knowledge and support.

Dr. Abt of Chicago, has beautifully said: "A hospital is a sanctuary consecrated to the healing of the sick and dedicated to the training of men and women in the art of medicine. It's staff should have a keen sympathy and a genuine love for the work and for the human souls who occupy the sick beds."

Christian's Responsibility
For the Christian to stand between the advances of medicine on the one hand and the needs of the sick on the other hand and say, "It means nothing to me," would be unchristian.

The victims of maternity, the memories of the healing Jesus would arise to condemn such neglect.

We as Christians and citizens of the community in which we live, must recognize our obligations to relieve human distress, and not only give our time and money, but give generally of our sympathy, interest and cooperation.

With the example of the great trail-blazers to inspire us, we can and should make it the custom for every man, woman and child to follow the example of Him who took neither sword nor scepter nor throne nor crown, but took a towel and a basin of water and washed the Disciples' feet.

A people trained to wash the feet of today, will have the heart of tomorrow.

Flood Danger Lessened Over State; Red Reaches 28.6 Feet

Many Acres Flooded Between River and Levees—But Protecting Banks Will Hold Safely

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau lowered the predicted flood stages for Arkansas streams Tuesday, indicating that the slight rises would do no more than overflow some additional land.

Earlier rapid rises were due to rains in the upper reaches of the White, Arkansas and Ouachita rivers, spreading the streams over much lowland area during the last 48 hours.

Red River Rising

Red river at Fulton had climbed another foot Tuesday and at noon was reported at 28.6 feet, slightly more than three feet above flood stage, 25 feet. The river has risen three feet in the past 72 hours.

Despite the rapid rise, there is little apprehension felt for the safety of levees protecting rich bottom lands of Hempstead county.

Many acres are inundated between the levees and the river proper, but little fear is felt for the levees although J. W. Cronk, U. S. meteorologist at Shreveport has forecast that the river at Fulton would reach 30 to 32 feet by Friday or Saturday.

Rivers on Rise

LITTLE ROCK.—Rising streams and flooded farming areas in many sections Monday followed rapidly on heavy rains of the past few days and brought serious crop and property damage to Arkansas.

Several secondary roads and one main highway were closed to travel and farmers in scattered lowland areas fled from their homes, while newly planted fields were inundated.

The Petit Jean river at Danville reached a stage of 29.4 feet at 7 a. m. Monday, rising nearly 10 feet above flood stage and passing the 1927 flood mark of 28.5 feet.

The Arkansas river rose steadily, though slowly, at Little Rock Monday. The 7 a. m. reading was 19.8 feet and at 2 p. m. the gauge registered 20.6 feet. A stage of 23 feet or higher is predicted here Wednesday. Other Weather Bureau predictions for the Arkansas river were 23 feet at Dardanelle Tuesday, 24 feet at Morrilton Tuesday and 26 feet at Pine Bluff Thursday.

The White river is not expected to rise as high as it did in the March floods. Stages predicted were 29 feet at Newport Wednesday, 25 feet at Georgetown Saturday and 28 feet at Clarendon next Tuesday.

Ouachita to Fall

The Ouachita river, which rose rapidly Monday at Camden following a rain of 3.46 inches, is expected to fall slightly Tuesday at Arkadelphia from its stage of 29.5 feet. The stream was five miles wide at Arkadelphia. All tributaries are out of their banks. A stage of nearly 40 feet is predicted at

Furnishing of Munitions From Europe Cited as Cause for Alarm

ROME, Italy.—(AP)—Italy mobilized three new divisions Tuesday and recalled to the colors part of the class of 1913 in answer to "steps of mobilization" taken by the Ethiopian government.

Convicted Arsonist to Furnish Local Names to Gentry

Faces 6-Year Prison Term After Stay Expires May 22

CROSNOE IS "GOAT"

Facing Prison Sentence, He Asserts He Will Call the Roll

Charles Crosnoe, Hope man under six-year sentence for arson in Bradley county, declared Tuesday he would file with State Fire Insurance Commissioner U. A. Gentry this week a list of local citizens who have had property burned.

Hope sustained a fire loss during the panic years running into several hundred thousand dollars.

Crosnoe, whose Bradley circuit court sentence was affirmed by the Arkansas Supreme Court, received a 30-day stay from Governor F. B. Arnold. The stay expires May 22.

Crosnoe's statement regarding local fires was contained in a signed letter which he personally delivered to the Star office Tuesday noon. The letter follows:

Editor The Star: It seems to me that you like to headline my name in your paper and write things about me, and after these things are printed in your paper I have people every day that stop me and try to question me about different things—and of course you only get one side of these stories and print them. My side is never printed.

I wish to state to you that I am not angry about anything you have printed in your paper about me. Furthermore, wish to state that I am through and have washed my hands with the things I have been accused of, whether guilty or not guilty.

I have been made the goat—and this week I expect to give the insurance commissioner of the State of Arkansas, U. A. Gentry, a complete list of names and dates of fires that I know about or have been connected with. I don't feel as though I should protect anyone. The good people of Hope should know that this is not a one-sided affair that has been going on here and in the county for the last several years and has caused the insurance rates to double in this city at the expense of some people who sold their undesirable property to the insurance companies.

Some of these people are well thought of and highly respected citizens of this city and county. I feel that the good people should know their way of seeking prosperity.

This is my reason for furnishing the insurance commissioner with this list, name and party who hired the job done, date, how the fire started, and the amount of insurance collected.

Furthermore, wish to say those fires stopped in Hempstead county and the City of Hope when U. A. Gentry was appointed insurance commissioner, as he has had men here active who have thrown a scare into some of these people who wish to sell out to the insurance companies.

I have asked you on several occasions not to print things about me in your newspaper. You in return told me that it was news and that you had to print it. Therefore I am asking you to get in touch with the insurance commissioner Friday and get the list of these things I am sending him and I wish to see you print them in your paper as you have printed about me.

Again stating that I have washed my hands and am through with all things that I have been accused of, and am not open for any proposition to violate any city or state law, and sincerely hope that none of these parties will deny the facts; if so, will go into detail and describe them. Yours very truly,

CHARLES C. CROSNOE

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Mind, Body at Tension Will Spoil Your Golf.

Your golf depends on the state of your mind and the condition of your body, any expert will tell you.

I know of no game which demands more self-confidence than does golf, and yet some of our greatest golfers are poor golfers. That's because their very egoism makes them want to excel, and they are under severe tension means failure in any athletic sport.

A clergyman, who was a golfing fanatic, once consulted a celebrated mental specialist because he was always under tension, relieved himself by a lot of bad language, and wanted to be freed of his difficult situation.

The doctor asked him if he was happily married. Presumably his domestic situation and his repressions at home carried over into the tension on the golf course. That may be the explanation for a good many golf widows.

"The doctor advised him to give it up. 'Give up what?' asked the up. 'Give up what?' asked the clergyman, 'my bad language, my golf, or my profession.'"

"Well," said the doctor, "try giving up the bad language; then if you meet with no success, give up the golf."

The clergyman said he would rather reverse the order and give up his profession first.

Golf is a game of relaxation in two senses of the word. You must be relaxed to play it well and when you play it well you relax.

At the same time, however, there is probably no other game that demands the same amount and the same quality of concentration that golf demands of its addicts. "Chick" Evans once said that he owed his success to a single word of advice given to him by Harry Vardon, who said: "Think."

Nevertheless, it is possible to introduce a considerable amount of automatic action into golf. There is the power of suggestion which may come from the outside or from the individual himself.

Autosuggestion has done a great deal for a good many poor golfers. Since the mechanism should be automatic, some amateurs play more badly after a few lessons because they put their minds on the mechanism. In such cases both kinds of suggestions are very useful.

Since many people are very easily subject to suggestion, they find themselves unable to do their best when playing against players who work the power of suggestion on them.

For instance, merely calling attention of a bunker will cause some players to shoot right into the bunker or to slice hundreds of yards out of the way. The water hazards are in themselves constant suggestion to themselves of wrong temperament. A real understanding of the golfer's psychology was expressed by the famous specialist Argyle-Robertson, after whom a certain reaction of the pupils of the eyes is named. He said, "When looking for a lost ball, always go to the spot where you think it is, then walk 20 yards back, and you will find it."

Publishing a Paper in Gold Rush Town—"The Klondike Nugget" Tells of Frenzied Journalism

Those wistful souls who figure that a newspaperman's life must be exciting, "because you meet so many interesting people," must read Russell A. Bankson's new book, "The Klondike Nugget."

This book tells about Eugene C. Allen, who went up to the Klondike in the gold rush of '98, founded a newspaper in Dawson City, and had about as eventful a career as any editor could dream of. He went places, saw people and did things!

seen even a country weekly's press you'll understand that it must have been pretty bulky—had to be carried to Dawson City by dog trains, in mid-winter. Mr. Allen reached the place with exactly $1.25 in cash.

Somehow or other he did it; and he made of the Klondike Nugget a heavy, hellsing sheet that got into all kinds of fights, made money hand over fist, and provided its editor with an exceedingly eventful life.

Disaster came when he left the paper and tried to organize an Arctic express service. He went broke. But he contributed to journalism one of its most bizarre and interesting chapters. Published by the Puxton Printers, this book sells for $2.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Clean and Orderly Homes Are Children's Natural Delight

"Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home" holds as true today as when the immortal words were penned. But today the influence of homes on the character of children is better understood. In the last of her series of Child Health Week Articles, Olive Roberts Barton sets forth the important factors in environment.

The first week of May has been known briefly as "Child Health Week" since 1929 when ex-President Hoover called the roll for the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection.

At that time the Children's Charter was drawn up with nineteen articles, pledged toward the furtherance of the child's "spiritual and moral training," rights of citizenship and the general betterment of his condition to help him "stand firm under the pressure of life."

Let me quote Article Number Seven of the Charter: "For every child a dwelling-place, safe, sanitary and wholesome, with reasonable provisions for privacy; free from conditions which tend to thwart his development; and a home environment harmonious and enriching."

Conditions Are Worse Now At this time, then, when after five years of depression, housing conditions have grown rapidly worse instead of better, it seems necessary to accent every word of that paragraph.

With families crowded into close quarters, children have little or no opportunity for decent privacy. Babies and children living in turmoil and dirt have little experience of "harmonious environment." The social or rather anti-social effects of this are so grave that economists and sociologists are already writing their warnings large in their reports.

Any blind man can see that unless such handicaps are quickly erased the future looks forbidding. What is sown today will be reaped tomorrow. Of what good is a Department of Justice and a million penal institutions as long as we nurse the seeds of crime and delinquency in ratholes?

The lettered agencies of better housing are doing what they can.

U. S. Seeks to Improve Homes One would have to be a clairvoyant to understand their precise functioning, but this much is certain: that the government is endeavoring to correct the situation by providing means and methods by which homes may be improved.

Children need air, light and sun, decent places to play, and enough room to be themselves. Character depends on self-respect, and on home respect.

Parents have a responsibility in this too, most decidedly. One is to keep a home, however small, as orderly as possible. A place for everything and everything clean and in its place (as far as is humanly possible) should be part of the Parent's Charter.

There should be concerted effort of individuals, communities, states and the Federal government to improve the lot of the child, who forms the standpoint of environment has never had a chance.

Too Much to Bear

The scene was the interior of a saloon in the Far West, and round the table were gathered as tough a gang as could be found in the whole of California. The game was fast and furious, the stakes were high.

"Boys," he shouted, "the game ain't a straight one! Slippery Sam ain't playing the hand I dealt him."—Hartford Courant.

City Might Unite With the County

City-County Consolidation Actually a Constitutional Change

LITTLE ROCK.—At least one of three possible types of city-county consolidation could be accomplished in Arkansas without constitutional sanction. Dr. J. S. Waterman, dean of the University of Arkansas Law School, informed County Judge Cook Monday.

The type of consolidation which Dean Waterman believes can be accomplished under the state constitution calls for the transfer of some functions performed by city officers to county officers.

Of the others, he says: "One type is better described as city-county separation. In this type the county and city remain as separate units but the county exercises no functions whatsoever in the geographical area in which the city is located."

"The other is true city-county consolidation. The county and city are consolidated so as to operate as a city-county or the city is itself converted into a county and operates as a city-county."

"Since 12 states have seen fit to deal with these two types of consolidation, through constitutional amendments, it seems that the observation in the report of the National Municipal League of 1930 that these two types of consolidation require constitutional sanction is a sound one."

In considering the adoption of the third type of consolidation, Dean Waterman concludes:

"Since the county officers are constitutional officers, it seems fair to state that the functions of city officers, which are created by legislative act, must be transferred to county officers, rather than transfer the function of county officers to city officers."

Fisher Body Plant Plans to Reopen

600 of 9,000 Striking Employees Return to Jobs in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(AP)—Lincoln Seale, manager of the Fisher Body company's plant here, said more than 600 of the 9,000 striking factory workers returned to their jobs Tuesday as partial operations were resumed.

Manager Seale admitted Tuesday the possibility that the factory would be opened in all departments Wednesday regardless of the strike of union workmen there.

School Group Hire

cited hundreds of decisions affecting these laws, and reached the conclusion that the sales tax cannot be sustained under the Arkansas constitution either as a property tax, privilege tax or excise tax.

Officials of the Education association said that the apportionment from the common school fund will be reduced approximately $1 per child for the school year 1935-36 because of a recent ruling that all the cigar and cigarette tax must go to the equalizing fund until $750,000 has been paid that fund, and that unless the state tax law is upheld the per capita apportionment will be at least $2 below present estimates for next year.

The sales tax law allows 65 per cent of the revenue to the common school fund and 35 per cent to the general revenue fund, from which it was contemplated part of the sales tax proceeds would be appropriated for old age pensions and unemployment relief.

The legislature adjourned, however, without appropriating any of the sales tax money for relief of the aged and unemployed.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Take It Easy When Trying New Sport.

Taking up outdoor sports in too strenuous fashion is one of the biggest mistakes an exercise-minded woman can make. During the summer months it's an excellent idea to substitute golf or tennis for the regular setting-up and reducing exercises you've been doing, but if you accept the substitution with unnecessary vigor, you'll do your body more harm than good.

If you have been doing exercises for only ten minutes a day and walking very few miles per week, it stands to reason that it would be foolish for you to play eighteen holes of golf the first time on the course, and even foolish to swim a mile or so across a bay. You might get across the bay, and even back again, but you'd be completely exhausted as well as discouraged with the idea of being a sports woman.

Take your sports in small doses until you get used to them. Don't play with people who expect you to keep at it for hours. Don't lose interest and give up a good outdoor game simply because you can't seem to make a high or even moderately high score. That you are getting exercise in the fresh air and that you keep happy while getting it are the important things.

Riding and swimming are fine sports for beginners. They exercise all of the muscles and, in addition, can be done alone. You don't really need company for either. Just be sure the horse is gentle and that the beach where you swim your few strokes a day isn't considered a dangerous one.

Rugged Individualism In Congress

The DARK BLOND

By CARLETON KENDRAKE © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MILlicent Graves, secretary to GEORGE DRINGOLD, finds her employer in his office dead. JIMMY HARR, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty shop where she is transformed into a brunette, then takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. She meets MRS. HARR, Jimmy's son, NORMAN, his stepson, ROBERT CAISSE, HARR's partner, DICK GENTRY, VERA DUCHESNE, Mrs. HARR's maid.

In HARR's home Millicent sees the mysterious "woman in black ermine" whom she believes has some connection with Dringold's death.

The chauffeur is found dead. Later HARR is kidnapped. Millicent and Norman learn the car driven by the woman in ermine belongs to PHYLLIS FAULCONER. They go to her apartment. Norman enters first. When he does not return Millicent follows. The place is in wild disorder and Norman is not in sight. Millicent escapes. She goes to the nearby garage where DEVER, FIVE THIRTY-NINE, NORMAN's car, is being repaired. Millicent arrives and takes Millicent away. She tells him all that has happened. He says Norman is in great danger, unless she will help try to save him. Millicent agrees eagerly.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVII

SERGEANT MAHONEY stopped the car in front of the apartment house. "I have been thinking," he said, "about Gentry. You say that he tried a key to apartment 309 and it wouldn't work?"

"That's right."

"Then, until he got to apartment 309 he must have thought the key was going to work."

"Yes, Why?"

"In that event," he said, "he must have used the key to get into the apartment house. In other words, he must have opened the outer door with that key."

She stared at him, her forehead showing lines of bewilderment.

"In other words," Mahoney said, "someone gave Gentry a key to apartment 309. That someone had another apartment in the house and must have given Gentry the key to that apartment instead of apartment 309. Both keys would open the door of the apartment house itself. The peculiar knocks were merely a signal so the conspirators couldn't be surprised by anyone with a pass-key."

Millicent recognized the logic of his remarks. "Good heavens, yes! And perhaps that other apartment is where..."

"Exactly," he interrupted. "Now that apartment must be on the third floor. Norman was carried from apartment 309. He would never have left it voluntarily. They would hardly have taken him up or downstairs."

Sergeant Mahoney stepped from the car, rang the bell of the apartment marked "MANAGER." At the third ring a speaking tube whistled. A woman's voice said, "If this is a tenant who's forgotten a key, I'll open the door. If it's someone who wants an apartment, come back at a decent hour."

"It's the police," Sergeant Mahoney said. "Open the door and meet us in the corridor with a pass-key."

A moment later the door buzzed open. Sergeant Mahoney pushed his way into the apartment house. Millicent saw a big, blond woman with a white, frightened face, hugging a kimono about herself.

Sergeant Mahoney showed her his badge. "Give me a pass-key," he said.

SHE handed him the pass-key. Sergeant Mahoney escorted Millicent to the elevator, slid back the door of the cage, pressed the button for the third floor.

"When you get to that floor," he said, "get out and run up and down the corridor screaming. 'Norman, where are you? After that, no matter what happens, act naturally—that is, be frightened. Don't let on that you know the police have the place surrounded. For your information, I have men placed where they can come to your rescue whenever I give the signal, but I don't want to do that until I've got some incriminating evidence.'"

She nodded.

"Good luck," he told her, stepped from the elevator and let the door close.

As the closing door made the electrical contact, the elevator lurched upward. It jolted to a stop at the third floor. Millicent saw a deserted corridor. She screamed. "Norman, Norman! Where are you?" and ran the length of the corridor.

Some man shouted through a closed door, "Pipe down. I want to sleep."

A door opened. A strange man stepped into the corridor.

"Are you looking for the man who was hurt in apartment 309?" he asked.

"Yes," Millicent said, and such was her eagerness to locate Norman that for the moment she entirely forgot she was bait for a death trap.

"I found him in the corridor," the man said. "He was unconscious. I took him in here and have been waiting for him to regain consciousness so I could find out what happened. He's not badly hurt."

Millicent ran swiftly to the door of the apartment. The man stood to one side. Looking past him, Millicent saw a couch.

On the couch, covered by a blanket, lay Norman HARR. There was a gasp on his forehead on which dry blood had encrusted. His eyes were closed.

"Norman!" Millicent screamed. Norman shouted, "Run, Millicent. Call the police!"

A woman's voice screamed an epithet, a gun roared.

Norman HARR had flung himself off the couch as he called his warning. Millicent saw that his hands were tied behind his back as he dove, head first, to the floor. A bullet ripped the davenport where his head had been. Another bullet tore through the upholstery, ripping cloth, sending up a shower of dust and exposing wire springs.

The strange man who had stood in the doorway struck at Millicent's head with a blackjack. Somehow she did not know how—she avoided that blow and sped toward Norman HARR.

Through an open door which led to the kitchen she saw Dick Gentry, an automatic in his hand, his lips twisted into an evil leer, taking deliberate aim at Norman HARR's struggling figure.

Millicent screamed, lunged forward. The gun roared. She heard the impact of a bullet striking something solid as, with a savagery which surprised her, she flung her self upon Dick Gentry and realized she was holding his wrist, struggling with him for the automatic. "You little she-devil!" he exclaimed, as her teeth sank into his hand, "Take that!"

He kicked at her. The gun roared again. Something struck her in the side with numbing force. She heard a terrible roar, felt Dick Gentry grow suddenly limp. Sergeant Mahoney's voice, sounding deadly ominous, said, "Make a move and you'll get the same dose. Stick 'em up!"

Millicent broke free as Dick Gentry collapsed to the floor. She saw Sergeant Mahoney cutting at Norman's bonds with a clasp knife, saw the strange man with his hands high above his head.

Millicent ran to Norman, screaming, "Are you hurt?"

He grinned at her and said, "No. Why didn't you run when I warned you? Gentry was holding a gun on me. He said he'd shoot if I didn't perfectly still. I knew what they wanted. They wanted to get you in here. When I shouted I dove forward to dodge the bullet. A woman was with him. She ran. I couldn't see her clearly."

He straightened, rubbing his wrists. Sergeant Mahoney stepped over to Dick Gentry, slowly shook his head.

"I'm sorry, boys," he said. "I had to do it. He'd have got the girl."

Millicent looked up then and saw that grim, silent figures had filed into the room. Figures who moved with swift efficiency, jerking down the hands of the man who had lured her into the apartment, snapping handcuffs around his wrists.

"What happened, Norman?" she asked.

Sergeant Mahoney sat down beside Norman HARR. "It's important," he said, "for us to get everything you know and set it fast. Give us the bare facts and give them quickly."

"I went to 309," Norman HARR said. "I knocked. No one answered. I started toward the elevator. This man," nodding his head toward the handcuffed prisoner, "stepped into the hallway. He asked me if I was a friend of Phyllis Faulconer. He said she had instructed him to let her friend into the apartment. It was a trap. I fell for it and said, 'Yes.' He let me into the apartment, struck at me with a blackjack. I was stunned but managed to tackle him."

"Dick Gentry came in. We fought all over the apartment but they got me finally. They dragged me down to this place and have held me prisoner. I think this man is a hired thug. 'That's all I know.'"

"And, by God!" said the handcuffed man, "that's all you'll ever find out. You've killed Gentry. You've got nothing on me. I thought the man was a burglar."

Sergeant Mahoney turned to him purposefully. "You," he said, "know where Jarvis HARR is. You know where Jarvis HARR is. You can either talk or we'll take you to headquarters, and when we get done with you you'll be damned glad to talk."

The man snarled defiance. "Try and make me talk," he said.

"By God!" Sergeant Mahoney said, grimly, "I will."

Game Post May Be Given to Stedman

Ex Pen Head Likely to Succeed Guy A. Amsler, Secretary, Resigned

LITTLE ROCK.—Political wisecracks, who see all, know a lot, and suspect the rest, are determined to find a niche for A. C. Stedman, deposed superintendent of the state penal system who was prominently mentioned for reinstatement by the prophets when S. L. Todhunter was eased out by the administration.

Stedman didn't get his old job back and no, if you believe all you hear, he is slated for another appointive position.

Secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

Guy A. Amsler resigned that position last week, effective as soon as the commission can agree upon a successor. The political prognosticators point out that W. A. Billingsley of Newport recently resigned as member of the state Board of Fisheries to restore Stedman to his job as superintendent.

The prophets predict this: Billingsley will be appointed a member of the Game and Fish Commission to succeed Harry Neely of Seacrest. Two new members will be appointed by the governor to complete the seven provided by the legislature. These three, with George L. Brandon, member of the commission and fishing crony of the governor and will control the commission and hand the secretaryship to Stedman.

CARDUI BROUGHT IMPROVEMENT

Because she was subject to pain, nervousness, irregularity, and began to feel so weak, Mrs. Reta McDonald of Stearns, Ky., began to take Cardui. She writes: "Cardui is fine. I could see an improvement right off. I took about eight bottles. I am lots better. I am over the weakness and my head and back do not bother me now."

Resistance to monthly pains is naturally increased, bringing relief, and strength of the whole system is built up.

Could we only draw the curtain That surrounds each other's lives, See the naked heart and spirit, Know what spur and action drives, Purer than we judge we should, We should love each other better, If we only understood. If we know the cares and trials, Knew the efforts all in vain, And the bitter disappointment, Understood the loss and gain, Would the grim external roughness Seem, I wonder, just the same? Should we help where now we blunder?

Should we pity when we blame? Ah, we judge each other harshly, Knowing not life's hidden force; Knowing not the fount of action Is less turbid at its source, Seeking not amid the evil All the golden grains of good, Oh, we'd love each other better If we only understood.—Selected.

Pulitzer Prizes of '34 Announced

Robert E. Lee Biography, by Freeman, Awarded $1,000 Prize

NEW YORK —(AP)—The Pulitzer prizes for the best original American play and the outstanding novel for 1934 were bestowed Monday night upon Zee Akins, "The Old Maid" and Josephine Winslow Johnson's "Now In November."

Announcement of the 10 awards in journalism and literature—representing the highest recognition in these fields in America—was made by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, at the annual dinner of the alumni of the Pulitzer School of Journalism.

The prize play award, given for an original American play staged in New York, carried an award of $1,000. The novel award also was $1,000.

William H. Taylor of the New York Herald Tribune won the $1,000 prize awarded for a distinguished example of a reporter's work with his series on the international yacht races last September.

Arthur Krock, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, was given the $500 prize as the Washington or foreign correspondent with the finest record of distinguished service. Ross A. Lewis of the Milwaukee Journal won the $500 award for a cartoonist's work with a cartoon entitled "Sure, I'll Work Both Sides."

Charles McLean Andrews won the $2,000 prize for the best book of the year on the history of the United States with his work, "The Colonial Period of American History."

The $1,000 award for the best American biography teaching patriotic and useful lessons was won by Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman of Richmond, Va., for his four-volume biography of Robert E. Lee, entitled, "R. E. Lee."

"Bright Ambush," a volume of poems won for Audrey Wurdeman the $1,000 prize for the American author of the best volume of verse.

The Sacramento Bee of Sacramento, Cal., was awarded the $500 prize and medal for the most disinterested and meritorious public service by an American newspaper.

Flood Danger

Camden Thursday. This is about 10 feet higher than the maximum stage there during the March flood. Some areas in the vicinity of Camden have been flooded four times this spring.

Rapid rise of rivers in the northeastern part of the state, with danger of floods at Success and Corning from the Current and Little Black rivers, was reported Monday. Suspension of traffic on Highway 1 may be necessary Tuesday if the Big Black river continues to rise. The flood is expected to exceed that of March, and isolation of communities in that vicinity was feared.

Although the Red river in southeastern Arkansas has registered a heavy rise, farmers in that section were reported to have sustained little damage thus far.

Flood stages were reported at El Dorado and several other points in the southern part of the state. Pike, Saline and White counties also reported serious flood conditions.

The state Highway Department reported that Highway 67 was closed Monday south of Newport and that a detour through Bald Knob, Wynne and Harrisburg is being used. Traffic over the toll bridge at Newport was halted because of water at the west approach. Highway 10 was reported closed near Danville and Perryville, and Highway 3 remained impassable west of Marianna. Highway 9 from Ferry to Mottilton, Highway 46 from Sheridan to Leola, and Highway 31 from Beebe to Lonoke were also closed to traffic.

Busche Brothers

from El Paso by a native, Oliver Wadley, who, as soon as they vanished, hastened to El Paso, where he gave his information to Sid Smith.

Smith went immediately to Vilonia, where the officers on the hunt had established information headquarters. But there were no officers in town; they were all out on the hunt.

Russell heard the news and, accompanied by Mark Huckaby, cattle buyer of Little Rock, set out for El Paso. With all the information he could obtain as to the whereabouts of the pair when last seen, he and Huckaby set off separately through the woods.

One of Brothers' first intimations that he was near his quarry came to Russell when one of the brothers, believed to be Freddie, 22, and the other, opened fire on him with an automatic 20 gauge shotgun. Russell ducked behind a tree as another shot was fired at him. The shot sprinkled the tree behind which he stood. The killer's gun jammed on him. Russell stepped from behind the tree and fired pointblank. The fugitive fell.

The other brother then came forward, firing as he came with a .45 caliber pistol. Face to face, they shot it out, and the young killer lost.

Both were shot in the chest and legs, and Clarence, who had buckshot in his hands and arms. He was hit squarely by the charge from Russell's gun. Freddie received only a portion of the charge, but sufficient to kill him almost instantly.

"What is that monologue about?" "The barber is taking a shave, and is trying to persuade himself to have a shampoo."

"Sometimes it takes a lot of courage to stand up for your convictions," muttered the prisoner as he rose to hear the judge sentence him to life imprisonment.

"I have always had a presentiment that I should die young." "But you didn't, after all, did you, dearie?"

Dance at Elks Club on Thursday Night

Tommy Douglas and his 12 Harlem Aristocrats will play for an Elks dance here Thursday night.

Douglas and his orchestra are returning to Hope by request. They were featured here the night of March 28. The dance starts at 10 p. m.

"I don't think any of these threats are really dangerous, but I think they ought to be set at rest by a forthright repudiation of them by the administration and by concerted action of all good Democrats against them whenever they appear."

German Girls to Return to Farms

Government Aims to Solve Dual Problem of Housing and Unwed Women

BERLIN, Germany—(AP)—Announcement that 333,000 women between the ages of 16 and 33 are needed on farms immediately to become mates to "healthy, virile hereditary" farmers was made Sunday by Germany's Estate of Nutrition, matchmaker extraordinary.

The lack of women was caused years ago when women deserted the farms because of the shortage of dwellings, the announcement said. This shortage now is being overcome by a government appropriation of 250,000,000 marks (about $100,000,000) for farm homes.

By ordering girls back to the soil, instead of back to the kitchen, Nazi leaders are trying to assume the role of matchmakers for 8,000,000 unmarried women.

The movement is grounded in statistics that there are 1,800,000 more women than men in Germany; that 8,000,000 of 33,500,000 females are single, and that there are only 882 women to 1,000 men in farming districts, compared to 999 women between 16 and 33 years to 1,000 men of these ages in the cities.

Hung Jury Results in Trial of McGill

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—Federal Judge Charles B. Davis Monday declared a mistrial in the mail fraud trial of A. U. McGill, former wealthy rice mill owner of Stuttgart, Ark., when the jury failed to agree.

The jury was dismissed after deliberating approximately 15 hours. It had been attempting to reach a verdict since Friday, and was out Monday from 10 a. m. until shortly after 2:30 p. m.

Members of the jury considered the evidence for two hours Friday and for eight hours Saturday.

Communists Fail to Disturb British

Banners Torn Down, and Jubilee Celebration Continues

Copyright Associated Press
LONDON, Eng.—King George V of England knelt Monday with the reverence of an humble pilgrim in ancient St. Paul's cathedral to give thanks to God for completion of 25 years on the throne, while all his vast empire celebrated his jubilee with prayers and merrymaking.

Differences of time and space, race and creed and social status vanished as loyal British subjects everywhere paid homage to the fifth of the Georges and one of the best-loved monarchs ever to rule an empire. So tempestuous was the shouted acclaim that rolled along with him as his state procession proceeded from Buckingham palace to the cathedral and back that the king obviously was stirred. Queen Mary was as deeply affected by the thunderous ovations. Communists, who had boasted loudly of the counter-demonstrations they were planning, managed to break out one banner almost over the king's landau bearing the slogan "workers of our land, united against capitalism." Evidencing the temper of the vast throne gathered to cheer the sovereign, however, was the swift, angry mass movement to rip the flag down, tear it into tatters and trample the pieces under foot.

Virginia has a town called Cuckoo, situated in Louisa county.

NOTICE OF SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that J. J. E. Bearden, Sheriff of Hempstead County, Arkansas, will, on Monday, the 10th day of June, 1935, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the afternoon of said date, offer for sale at the front door of the county courthouse, in the town of Washington, Hempstead County, Arkansas, at public outcry to the highest bidder, on a credit of three months, the following described real estate situated in the County of Hempstead and State of Arkansas, to-wit:

The East Half of the Northwest Quarter, containing 80 acres, and the West Half of the Northeast Quarter containing 80 acres, and the Northeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter, containing 40 acres, and the East Half of the Northwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter, containing 20 acres, and the Northwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter, containing 10 acres, and all that part of the Northeast Quarter of the Southeast Quarter lying north and west of the Washington and Fulton Road, containing 29.15 acres, more or less, all in Section 29; also the Northwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of Section 28, and all that part of the East Half of the Northwest Quarter of Section 28 described as follows, to-wit: commencing at a stake on the section line between Section 21 and 28, 13.81 chains East of the Northwest corner of Section 28, run thence South 20 chains, thence South 14 degrees East 12.93 chains, thence North 56 degrees East 10 chains, thence North 52 degrees East 17 chains, thence North 37 degrees West 20.69 chains, thence West to the point of beginning, containing 49.46 acres; all of said lands lying in Township 11 South, Range 25 West, and containing in the aggregate, 348.61 acres, more or less.

The purchaser will be required to give bond with good security for the payment of the purchase price, the security to be approved by me, together with interest from the date of sale at the rate of six percent per annum.

This sale will be made by virtue of a levy made by me under an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Hempstead County, Arkansas, on May 4, 1935, upon a judgment rendered in said court in favor of Marion Watson, Bank Commissioner of the State of Arkansas in charge of the Washington State Bank of Washington, Arkansas, insolvent, against W. E. Elmore, defendant, said execution being issued in favor of said Marion Watson, Bank Commissioner of the State of Arkansas in charge of the Washington State Bank of Washington, Arkansas, insolvent.

WITNESS my hand this 11th day of May, 1935.

J. J. E. BEARDEN
Sheriff of Hempstead County Arkansas.
